

Annington appoints David Tudor-Morgan as Chief Operating Officer

Annington is pleased to announce that David Tudor Morgan has joined the company as Chief Operating Officer.

David will be joining the Annington Limited Board and will take operational responsibility for Annington's Property, Rentals and Property Services functions.

Ian Rylatt, Chief Executive Officer commented: 'I am delighted that David is joining Annington. He brings a wealth of property experience to the company including residential property management, asset management and estate management. David's extensive skills and knowledge will further reinforce the leadership of our diverse residential property activities.'

David was previously the Director of Estates at Regent's University, London and was formerly with British Land for 10 years where he held various roles, latterly as Director of Retail & Residential Property Operations. David is also a member of the Royal Institute of Chartered Surveyors.
